

core values of parents at
CAPE FEAR ACADEMY

The parents of Cape Fear Academy are committed to modeling our core values of respect, integrity, resilience, and accountability. They have defined these core values to clarify expectations.

AS A PARENT...

I show respect for other parents when I:

- do not judge
- refrain from spreading rumors, gossip, and information we do not know is true
- listen even when opinions differ

I show respect for faculty & staff when I:

- model respect for the teacher in front of students
- directly contact the teacher first before going to other parents and administrators when there is an issue
- follow all school rules

I show integrity when I:

- stand up for others and do what is right
- let my children be responsible for their own work
- approach a teacher and determine facts to solve a problem (model appropriate way to approach teachers with respect)
- I have the courage to be Who I Am (not conform)

I demonstrate resilience when I:

- show a positive face in the community, even if there are conflicts within the school
- let my child know it is okay to fail or feel bad, and learn from the mistake
- when I try to point out the positive in a situational setback that arises at school or home

I model accountability when I:

- take responsibility for commitments e.g. not blaming teachers for grades, or blaming others for my actions or words
- take responsibility for my actions
- follow school rules (carpool, uniforms, etc.)
- am an active member of the CFA community (volunteering, being part of the PA, teacher communication, being aware of what child is doing, attend school events)
